

About Us

For over a decade Jordan Lawrence has provided benchmarks, web-based technologies and best practice standards that enable clients to rapidly collect and leverage accurate information about the records and applications used within their companies.

Our processes enable deep insights into the whereabouts and movement of sensitive and personal information, access, retention, storage and other important factors.

We provide services that support and maximize the most critical information management initiatives. We enable clients to make better decisions faster. We enable their vendors to provide more appropriate products and services.

By leveraging our work with over 1,000 clients and an experienced core support team, we have a unique perspective on the baseline requirements and obligations companies must meet to cut the difficulties, costs, and legal and financial risks associated with records management and control of sensitive information.

Our proven web-based technology codifies our expertise and skills, our domain knowledge, and experience into high value and cost effective services.
